ADVENTURE?

PACIFIC RIM DAY

Pacific Rim Day will be March 11. It is going to be one of the most important events on campus this year, with a number of the best Asian dance and musical performances in Vancouver (and in some cases in the country).

The event is sponsored by the Pacific Rim Department, and International Education, and is organized by both faculty and students in the Pacific Rim Program, with help from other students interested in East Asian and South East Asian societies, including some of the Japanese exchange students from Takushoku University.

The overall aim is to let the Campus and the public know what kinds of issues and cultures we study. We do expect the events of the day to prove interesting to a broader audience, as well.

There will be events from 11:00am through the afternoon until 9:00pm.

Almost finalized program follows; there may be some changes and/or additions.

EVENTS

- 11:00-2:30 Information Booth (Lobby)
Information on program and Asian cultures
- 12:00-12:30 Laotian Musical Procession (Lobby)

VANCOUVER COMMUNITY COLLEGE
LANGARA CAMPUS

EXTERNAL STUDIES PROGRAM, EUROPE
FALL SEMESTER 1992

GENERAL OBJECTIVES: The College is offering an exciting experience in various cities in Europe, featuring university transfer credit in FIVE courses; a full semester's credit, in Art History, Literature and Philosophy. We will take you to Europe for three months and introduce you to a number of great cities and many cultural monuments. This is an alternate program in which you can study Art History, Literature and Philosophy in Europe instead of the classroom. You will have the opportunity to do primary research in Europe in some of the finest collections of artifacts in the world. We hope that you will develop a deeper sense of the arts as well as a greater insight into European culture.

BASIC REQUIREMENTS: You MUST be 19 years old by September, 1992. You must register as a FULL-TIME student at Langara and carry all five courses. Students may not audit any of the courses. Our curriculum demands that we follow the guidelines of transferability to universities. You must have completed first year College or University English. In all respects, the requirements of the College will be met...which means that there will be regular assignments and examinations. Participants must show a willingness to become seriously involved in foreign cultures, literature, history, art, architecture and philosophy for a period of three months. The instructors also expect your readiness to work independently, in academic matters, and yet to cooperate with others to discover the value of art, literature and philosophy. Our intent is to combine scholarly studies with the excitement of first-hand visual experience and the enjoyment of travel.

COURSES: All students must register in two Art History courses two English courses and one Philosophy course, as follows:

Art History 112 (Monuments in Art I).....	3 credits
Art History 212 (Monuments in Art II).....	3 credits
English 323 (Survey of Classical and Early English).....	3 credits
English 424 (Survey of 17th to 19th Century Literature)..<	3 credits
Philosophy 226 (Social and Political Philosophy).....	3 credits

COST: $4600 This price could be affected should the Canadian dollar decline. This cost includes the following where applicable to the group as a whole:

- ...airfare Vancouver to London return.
- ...accommodations and some meals.
- ...all day trips, museum fees, tips, etc.
- ...transportation (buses, ferries trains and metros).
- ...all tuition fees.

ALL OTHER DAILY EXPENSES MUST BE BORNE BY THE PARTICIPANTS, MEALS SPENDING MONEY, LAUNDRY, ENTERTAINMENT, INDEPENDENT TRAVEL, ETC.
RECOMMENDED BUDGET - A MINIMUM OF $20 CANADIAN PER DAY.

ASSIGNMENTS AND ASSESSMENTS: All students will have to complete a number of assignments and examinations which are necessary for the completion of the courses. Each student will have to establish his/her own work habits in order to fulfil both the directed and independent components of the program. All term assignments and exams MUST be completed prior to the Vancouver return date of November 24, 1992.

GENERAL ITINERARY:

Sept. 8 - 10 Orientation and introductory lectures.
Sept. 11 Vancouver to London.
Sept. 12 - 17 London, England.
Sept. 18 - 20 Colmar, France.
Sept. 21 - Oct. 8 Rome, Italy.
Oct. 9 - 14 Florence, Italy.
Oct. 15 - 17 Venice, Italy.
Oct. 18 - 23 Vienna, Austria.
Oct. 24 - 28 Munich, Germany.
Oct. 29 - Nov. 3 Berlin, Germany.
Nov. 4 - 5 Köln, Germany.
Nov. 6 - 18 Paris, France.
Nov. 19 - 23 London, England.
Nov. 24 London to Vancouver.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURE: Registration is limited to 45 participants and is open to all students who meet the following special requirements and qualify for admission to Langara. All participants MUST have completed the equivalent of first-year College or University English. The major qualification for this program is a keen sense of self motivation and a genuine interest in art, literature and philosophy. All participants should be interested in travel and must be willing to join in and become an active member of a close-knit group. All participants should be interested in European culture in general and committed to learning. Participants should also recognize that they will have to share living and study space with other members of the group on an ongoing basis for a period of three months.

We are now taking deposits of $350 payable to V.C.C., Langara. These deposits are non-refundable and are necessary to assure registration in the program. Final balance of payment will be required no later than August 1, 1992.

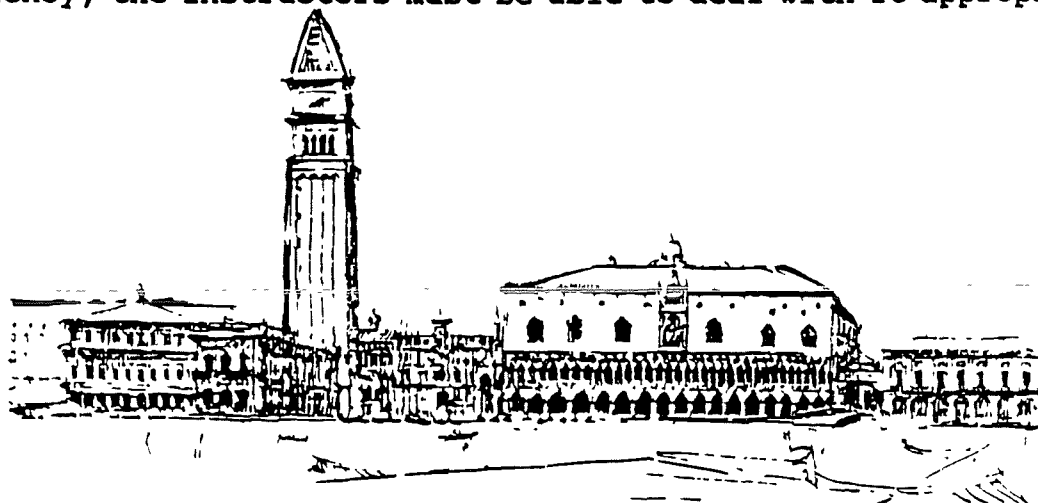

All students are required to fill out a questionnaire and to attend an interview with the instructors in order to obtain entrance into the External Studies Program, Europe 1992.

MEALS: The price of the program includes continental breakfasts in London, Paris, Colmar, Koln, Berlin and Munich. All other meals are your own responsibility. Participants will have the opportunity to take part in evening meals that are very good value where available. These meals will be arranged by the instructors, but will only be available where facilities co-exist with accommodations, ie. primarily in the campsites. These meals will be voluntary and there will be a sign-up sheet; they will be approximately $10 Canadian each.

ACCOMMODATIONS: All participants must be willing to share accommodations, generally with 2 to 4 persons per room. All locations will have designated study areas. Accommodations will include hotels and campsites with bungalows.

DOCUMENTATION: You are responsible for obtaining a Passport prior to departure. If you do not have one, obtain it as soon as possible. You must also carry with you at all times an International Student Identity card, available from the instructors. No special immunization is required. Participants must bring with them at least 4 Passport Photos to be used for transport passes, etc.

INDEMNITY: Each student must obtain (from the instructors) and sign a release form that allows the instructors and the College to be free from liabilities in respect of the trip. The College does not insure the field school in any respect, and is not responsible for any harm that may befall a student; students are treated as responsible adults. Participants are responsible for their own medical coverage while overseas and should check their coverage with B.C. Medical to determine whether they need additional coverage. Before departure, all participants will be required to complete a confidential medical history form and must make ALL medical problems known to the instructors. If there is a medical emergency, the instructors must be able to deal with it appropriately.

STAYING ON IN EUROPE: For little or no extra cost in airfare, participants can extend their tickets to allow for flexible return dates. All return dates must be specified no later than August 1, 1992, after that date, a change of ticket fee will be charged.

FIELD STUDY TRIP TO ECUADOR

During the summer of 1991, Langara led 22 students from moist and humid coastal lowlands, having donned rubber boots and layer upon layer of mosquito repellent, to high snowcapped volcanic peaks where survival depended upon mass purchases of otavalon woollen textiles (portable oxygen tanks would have come in handy, for the slightest exertion left one panting and gasping for air!) Everyone of us survived it all!

After spending the month of May studying at Langara, and acquainting ourselves with our fellow travellers we were all eager to fly south.

Spending two months exploring both the geographic & cultural diversities of Ecuador, while earning 9 transferable credits we would all agree this term will likely be the most memorable of our studies.

Experiencing a new culture in this format does require an open mind, patience, hard work, sharing and a willingness to try new things.

Science studied in African wilderness

By Dave Wiebe

At first glance, it appears to be a typical classroom situation: biology students eagerly taking notes from an instructor, then forming smaller groups as they examine nature up close. This familiar impression soon changes, however, when one realizes that this classroom is situated in the midst of the African wilderness.

The Dark Continent, with its untold mysteries and magnificent surroundings, is a biologist's paradise and a traveller's dream. That is why a new university study program that brings together Canadian students and the African landscape is such an exciting prospect.

"It's a natural combination," says Donald MacDonald, Langara Biology Instructor and project coordinator for Study in Kenya, a new external studies program offered through VCC and SFU. The two institutions have teamed up to develop an eight-week safari/study package that will take in much of the diverse, unspoiled habitat of Africa.

"When you think back to the nineteenth century, it was biologists doing the exploring," says MacDonald. "They were the ones who first opened up Africa."

Four professors and two instructors will be responsible for delivering an educational package in a distant locale. "We'll literally be setting up classrooms in the middle of the Serengeti," says MacDonald. "We'll have a unique chance to study nature closer than most could imagine. We'll enjoy spectacular African sunsets and sleep in what is the true wilderness."

While VCC has been running field schools for 15 years, this is the first time they have teamed with SFU for a trip to Kenya. "In fact," says MacDonald, "as far as I know this is the first time it's ever been done in North America."

Students have a number of courses to choose from as part of their studies in Kenya. Topics include introductory ecology, vertebrate physiology, wildlife conservation and field techniques in archaeology. They spent two weeks taking orientation lectures and labs prior to their departure this month. Then, it's nearly two months experiencing one of the world's last natural domains.

Various national game parks will afford an ideal situation for studying and interacting with African animals in their natural environment. The world-renowned coral reefs of Kenya offer an unsurpassed venue for studying marine life. Students will see Lake Barng'o, a freshwater lake with an estimated 448 species of bird life inhabiting the area. They will also come face to face with history through a visit to the Great Rift Valley, the site of the famous Leakey discoveries.

"It's an archaeologist's dream, going right to the source," says Stan Copp, Langara Anthropology and Archaeology Instructor. "These are literally some of the oldest archaeological sites in the world. It's the crater of humanity. The historical significance is global."

Another highlight is a visit to Meru National Park, perhaps the most untouched of Kenya's national parks. "The wildlife is much more difficult to spot," explains MacDonald, "but that's because of the incredibly lush landscape. The place is dense with Acacia trees, Doum palms, many different grasses and forms of vegetation."

While on safari, participants will enjoy periodic stays in luxurious lodges. Most of the time, however, they will be camping along African rivers. "Nothing fancy--we'll be camping on the same ground as Hemingway did. It should be exciting."

Too exciting, perhaps? "Well, there will always be some dangers," says MacDonald, "but there are some strict safety restrictions, and the safari operators certainly know what they're doing."

It was the level of student interest that influenced the decision to go to Kenya in the first place. Says MacDonald, "I get the feeling that they think this may be their last chance to see Africa, before it's lost forever."

Donald MacDonald...off to Africa.

CENTRAL EUROPE

This program offers you the opportunity to study while travelling in Central Europe. You will examine European society and thought and earn up to 15 hours of university transfer credit.

You can experience the excitement of Central European life and see fascinating sights from Vienna and Krakow to Berlin and Prague. You will also gain insight into the incredible variations in geography and culture.

You will see art, sense history, and sample ways of living that will help you understand not only the modern times, but the contributions the people of this area have made to the world.

REQUIREMENTS

You must be at least 19 years of age by 1 September 1992, and be a registered student at either Okanagan College or V.C.C., or be admissible.

You must register for at least three courses. You must be prepared to undertake serious study.

There will be introductory and orientation sessions in Kelowna. These will start your classwork and establish your term projects as well as help prepare you for travel in Central Europe. On the trip you will be expected to attend class regularly, prepare papers, and take mid-term and final examinations.

COURSES

Participants will register in the following courses and/or others approved by the program instructors (i.e., Distance Education):

Medieval Europe	(O.C. History 120)
Early Modern Europe	(O.C. History 116)
Modern Europe	(O.C. History 126)
Intro to Sociology	(V.C.C. Sociology 120)
Sociology of Families	(V.C.C. Sociology 250)

All these courses carry University Transfer credit.

TEXTS

You will need to purchase (and carry with you) textbooks assigned for each course. Other reading materials will be provided, and you will have opportunities to buy optional books.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Accommodations will be shared rooms (double and/or triples) in simple hotels, pensions, or student residences. The services will be adequate but limited.

ASSIGNMENTS AND ASSESSMENTS

All students will attend regular classes. Classes will generally meet Monday to Friday although travel days may necessitate an occasional Saturday class. The bulk of the classes will be held in Prague, Krakow, Berlin and Vienna.

The three History courses will be taught sequentially, i.e., History 120 (Medieval History) will be completed before commencing History 116 (Early Modern Europe); in turn, students will finish History 116 before beginning History 126 (Modern Europe).

The two Sociology courses will also be taught sequentially. Sociology 120 will be followed by Sociology 250.

All students will be asked to attend and participate in class projects and tours.

The term includes mid-term examinations and special assignments. Final examinations and all assignments will be written before we return to Canada.

Detailed course outlines, assignments, and reading lists will be available no later than the last week of August, 1992.

PROGRAM COSTS

$5500 includes:

- all tuition fees
- air fare, Vancouver - Munich - Vancouver (incl $40 departure tax)
- ground transportation between cities
- accommodation in student residences/simple hotels
- continental breakfast every day; dinner while touring
- city tours with local guides
- museums and field trips

This fee does not include:

- personal and medical insurance;
- flight cancellation insurance
- passport fees
- visas (approximately $40 for Poland; $30 for Czechoslovakia)
- course textbooks
- lunch and most dinners (dinner is included when travelling)
- personal expenses such as postage, gifts, laundry, shopping trips, entertainment
- optional travel on free weekends, Mid-semester break or following the External Studies Program
- Public transportation

A recommended budget to cover spending money, laundry, entertainment, drinks, lunches, some suppers, and toiletries is a minimum of $15 to $20 Canadian per day.

The program fee is income tax deductible. Participants are also eligible for student loans. (Loan applications should be submitted as early as possible.)

DOCUMENTATION

You will need a valid passport as well as visas for Poland and Czechoslovakia. If you do not have a passport, apply for one as soon as possible.
No special immunization is needed.

Participants should obtain and carry an International Student identity card.

Participants are further advised to bring at least 6 extra passport photos for transportation passes, extra visas, and other identification documents.

HEALTH

You will be asked to show proof of adequate medical coverage (such as B.C. Medical Extended Health). In order to minimize the chance of serious medical problems during the program, you must submit a medical form signed by your doctor when you register. This form should report any special medical needs and certify that your state of health is good.

INDEMNITY

Liability protection is the responsibility of each participant. You will be required to sign a form which releases the college and the instructors from any responsibility or liability. You are strongly urged to purchase flight and trip cancellation insurance (medical and bereavement reasons only).

Note: although every attempt will be made to stay within the published cost, fluctuations in exchange rates and travel costs may lead to fee adjustments. You will be notified of any necessary changes as soon as possible.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURE

This EXTERNAL STUDIES PROGRAM - CENTRAL EUROPE 1992 is open to all students in the B.C. College/University system. Application forms are available from the professors now; the first 35 qualified students to apply will be accepted.

We are looking for students who have a serious interest in cultural studies, students who are motivated to read and think in an environment that offers many other possibilities. We also seek students who are adaptable and cooperative, especially in the face of the kinds of inconveniences that travellers are apt to encounter.

You will need to make a $300 deposit once you have been accepted. This sum goes toward reserving accommodations and transportation; it also reserves your place in the group. A second installment of $2400 must be paid by 15 May 1992, while the remaining $2800 is due no later than 1 August 1992. All cheques should be made payable to Okanagan College and should be marked External Studies Program - Central Europe.

If you become sick or injured before the departure date, every attempt will be made to return money not committed to accommodation, transportation and other costs. Once the trip begins, no refunds will be made.

NOTE: applications will be processed upon receipt; participants would normally be notified of their participation within two to three weeks of the application submission.

Every effort will be made to conduct the trip as described in this brochure. We reserve the right, however, to make changes if they prove necessary. You will receive notice if itinerary or costs must be revised. If unforeseen circumstances make it necessary for the Colleges to cancel the program, all money including the deposits will be refunded whenever possible.
