1) KING EDWARD CAMPUS PRINCIPAL

At its meeting on Wednesday, College Council appointed Harry Pankratz to be the next Principal of King Edward Campus.

He will be on Campus as soon and as frequently as possible, working with me until I leave at the end of the month.

Mr. Pankratz is the only person who has served the College continuously as an administrator since it was founded in 1965.

From 1965 to 1968, he was the Administrative Assistant responsible for College Foundations and other night school programs. From 1968 until 1972, he was Dean of Instruction at the Langara Campus. Most recently, he has been the Regional Director of Instruction for the College.

With this background, Mr. Pankratz is well aware of the aims and objectives of King Edward Campus and so recognizes many of our problems. He has spoken on our behalf at many forums and has shown himself to be our friend.

I feel certain that all faculty, staff, students and administrators will give Mr. Pankratz a very warm welcome. If you don't know him already, please make yourself known to him.

FITNESS

& STRESS

Stress on the job. Stress off the job. There's no escaping it, even in the relatively unhurried pace of business in Vancouver. But expert advice is available. Fitness consultants recommend the following steps when you're trying to deal with stress at work: sleep regularly, exercise and maintain good health habits; compartmentalize work and non-work life; engage in the right kind of physical activity; talk through your problems with your peers; withdraw physically from your job for a few days if necessary. And how's this for a fun cure: among the top-rated relaxation methods for anxiety (termed the psychological equivalent of muscle tension) are making love and flying a kite! Well - it IS spring.
