- 4) The following is a song by Michelle Stiff who wrote it to emphasize her feelings regarding the Oil Port that was proposed for Kitimat.

Welcome to my valley
See the mountains and the trees
That strike a chord of desperation.
Deep inside of me.

The ocean is a lady
She'll drag your soul to sea
And the Mountains are my mother
She'll embrace both you and me.

Welcome to my valley
It's lovely can't you see
If you close your eyes to smoke and cinder
Pretend you just don't see.

That they've taken most of our mountains
And now they want the sea
But beyond the elusive dollar sign
This is home to you and me.

Welcome to my valley
Don't turn and run away
It really once was lovely
There really was a day.

When the Mountains were my mother
And the ocean still was free
But now the elusive dollar sign has weakened you and me.

Welcome to my valley.

Michelle was a King Ed. student, now studying journalism at Langara. She won first prize with this song at the recent Union of Indian Chiefs Conference in Penticton.
