11) IS IT DYSDIADOCHOKINESIS, DYSNOMIA OR DYSBULIA???????????

I have observed varying numbers of instructors slowly manipulating the keys of the typewriters that are located at the southern end of the administrative area.

Are those instructors suffering from an inability to be able to perform repetitive movements with their fingers..... at an acceptable speed?

It could be argued that the instructors may be suffering from an inability to recall words at will, even when he/she knows the word he/she wishes to recall and can recognize the word when it is said.

On the other hand, the instructors may be experiencing a confusion in the ability to be able to think and to attend to that task when placed in that position.

Do you realise that your tax dollars may underwrite a study that will investigate this problem some day??????

14) A NOTE FROM OUR MUSIC DEPARTMENT

Please use Local 82 when phoning the Music Department. This frees the "outside" line for "outside" calls.

15) SHALL WE GIVE IT A GO??????????

Please be advised that a new procedure will be used for reporting conflicts. Students will complete a three-part conflict form and return it to the faculty member in classes in which conflicts exist. Two-thirds of this form will then be submitted to you by the faculty member. You in turn will prepare an envelope which will contain a copy of the conflict exam. Attached to this should be the lower one-third of the conflict exam form. Please return the remaining one-third of the form to my office.

In addition to this form please mark the name of your division on the envelope. This envelope should then be sent to Dr. Klein's office in C-211 where they will be separated by conflict period. At the end of each exam day Dr. Klein's office will separate conflict envelopes by division and will return same to you.
—Memo from Dr. Sean Fanelli, of Westchester Community College.

Wait till the I.R.S. discovers Fanelli!
