CLASSIFIED INFORMATION

In the Kansas City Star, an ad in the personals column one day had eight long words -- reprehensible, idiosyncrasy, extrapolate, platitudinous, assiduous, plethora, euthanasia and desiderata. It was signed by a Ronnie Johnson.

The editor wondered what was going on, so he sent a young reporter to find Ronnie Johnson. Ronnie turned out to be a high-school sophomore whose English teacher had told the students that she would give an automatic A to anybody who found those eight words in the paper the first semester.
