STUDENT INFORMATION AND EVALUATION

A reminder.

As you meet your new class(es) your students are very curious, and often very concerned, as to the criteria by which you decide how grades, if applicable, are awarded; or how you decide as to whether or not they are to progress to the next level at the end of the course. (Students earn the grades that you award!)

You must give them this information, preferably in writing, when first you meet each class, and repeat it from time to time.

At the same time, you must advise your students as to the general objectives of the course/program--what it is that they will have to do to be successful. It may be that on learning the general objectives, they will wish to transfer to courses which more appropriately meet their needs. Please assist them in such transfers.

As an instructor, you have the responsibility of ensuring that the objectives of each course/program in which you are involved are consistent with the objectives of the College and of the program. If you have any doubts about these objectives, please discuss them with your department head.

Although many students receive assessments before registering, the assessment process is not foolproof. If you find that some of your students have been inappropriately placed, please advise your coordinator or department head as early as is possible so that transfers may be made.

At all times, the student must be made aware of progress being made so that the final grade will not come as a surprise. That most instructors do this is apparent, as there were no grade appeals made for the January-August period. Please inform your students of the grade appeal procedure.

Also ensure that aspects of your instruction provide sufficient challenge to each individual you teach.

Keep your students aware of the support services available to supplement classroom activities, particularly the: Learning Centre, Counselling Career Centre, Counselling Services, Health Services and the Cafeteria.

If you become aware of any student having serious learning difficulties, please inform your division's IEPA (Individualized Education Program for Adults) representative.

Enrolment is down in some classes this term and you may find that there has to be consolidation and changes in scheduling. Your efforts in handling such a situation are much appreciated by both students and administrators.

The responsibility for maintaining a high quality of learning opportunities is yours--it is the least of your students' expectations. I have every confidence that you, as an individual, will meet or even surpass all expectations.

Have a challenging, interesting and rewarding session!

PROJECT LITERACY NEEDS YOU!

As you know, Project Literacy U.S. has hit the airwaves with broadcasts that draw attention to the need for literacy programs in the U.S.

On this side of the border we, too, are involved. The U.S. broadcasts flash a special toll free number for British Columbians seeking advice and information about literacy programs.

Project Literacy B.C. needs people for one or two nights from now until December, on the evenings of these broadcasts to answer queries about literacy programs.

It's fun and a gratifying way to do your bit.

Enter the BANNER DESIGN COMPETITION

Revitalizing Mt. Pleasant

It could be a banner year for Mount Pleasant.

As part of the Mount Pleasant's street beautification program, a banner design competition is taking place this fall.

Project coordinator Frances Warner says the invitation is open to anyone in the area to participate in the banner competition. "Residents, business people! We would like to get as much local input as possible!"

The banners are part of the street beautification program

Warner is organizing. The banner design winner, whose creation will be displayed on street poles in Mount Pleasant, will get $50 for coming up with the best concept.

Design guidelines:

- there must be three colours (one being deep gold to match street-pole colour)

- the banner size is 30 inches by 60 inches

- symbols must represent Mount Pleasant's history

- all entries must be submitted by October 15 and become property of the Mount Pleasant Business Association.

Warner also pointed out that the winning design will not necessarily be implemented.

"Things are starting to happen," says Warner, who is working on the area's revitalization program through a provincial government grant. The banners are just part of a program that includes trees, street lamps, tree lighting, sidewalk edging and much more, with costs to be shared by merchants and owners with some city and provincial assistance.

Warner points to the success of the summer's Heritage Day in Mount Pleasant, the upcoming Fringe Festival, and the Brewery Creek committee as examples of the community's resurgence.

"Once we get over the first hurdle, the ball starts to roll," said Warner.

If you would like to enter the banner competition or find out more about the revitalization project, contact Warner at 875-6261.

$50.00

Artist's conception of a Mount Pleasant streetscape, with banners that residents and merchants can help design.

Declaration on Citizenship and Adult Learning

The Canadian Association for Adult Education's motto for its 50th Anniversary celebration was Jean Jaures' statement: "Take from the altar of the past the fire, not the ashes". In this spirit, the CAAE organized seven national conferences during 1985 to focus on public policy issues confronting adult learners in Canada and the world community. At each of these events, the text of a Draft Declaration on Citizenship and Adult Learning was discussed. The Draft was also circulated widely throughout the adult education movement and the voluntary sector for comment and critique.

This Declaration, approved by the Association's Board of Directors, is the product of this process. The CAAE presents it to the Canadian community as a statement of belief and commitment, and as a guide to the Association's future policies and actions.

This Declaration is printed in the form of 'camera-ready' artwork. You are invited to share this Declaration with friends and colleagues and to reproduce it in your publications.

The CAAE calls upon all those who believe in the power of learning as an agent for individual and community improvement to endorse this Declaration and to join with us in our efforts to promote a "learning society — led by learning adults".

Anne Ironside, President
Canadian Association for Adult Education

Fifty years ago the Canadian Association for Adult Education declared that the adult education movement is based on the belief that people have, within themselves and their communities, the spiritual and intellectual resources adequate to the solution of their problems.

This conviction is even more timely today. Throughout the world, gaps are widening between advantaged and disadvantaged, educated and under-educated, rich and poor. Rapid change, chronic unemployment, ecological disaster and global warfare threaten. Social justice and human liberation — indeed survival — are far from assured.

Canada can become a community in which all may learn to play more effective roles as citizens, workers, parents, learners, and consumers. Canada can become a community where all have access to the information they need to make informed decisions, and where all have the opportunity to participate in learning throughout their lives. Canada can become a community in which literacy, in its fullest sense, is a universal right and condition. Canada can become a community where full participation is a reality for all, including those whose access to these rights has been denied, be they women, native people, poor, unemployed, seniors, immigrants, or people with disabilities.

Canadians can shape their cultural, economic, political and social destiny.

To realize this vision, adult education must become a Canadian priority. Public and voluntary adult education initiatives must be valued and encouraged because they are the spark and incentive for lifelong learning. In both its formal and informal manifestations, adult education requires and deserves the support of citizens, institutions and governments.

As members of communities and of broader social movements, adult educators must join with, and learn from, all those Canadians who seek full citizenship, personal growth, and social betterment. Canadian adult educators must strengthen their historic role of working within communities to create environmentally sound, sustainable local economic development. By fostering co-operative working and learning relationships, adult educators can assist Canadians to prepare more effectively for the future.

Adult education is a worldwide movement for personal and social transformation. The Canadian Association for Adult Education is a partner in this movement to build a humane, just and democratic society — a learning society led by learning adults.

UPDATE ON MY PROGRESS (Letter from Sharon Musto)

The day after my operation, the doctors attached an electronic stimulator to my nerve centre. A few hours later I was relaxed. I could stand holding on to the window ledge! I felt great!

Now, I've started therapy at G.F. Strong four times a week. I've started on the parallel bars and I'm learning to dress and feed myself. It's lots of hard work, but I love it. I also still go swimming once a week.

You'll be pleased to know the pain I used to suffer in my arms has disappeared.

Thank you all for caring and giving me a chance to make myself as independent as I can.

Sharon Musto

(P.S. Sharon hopes to be ready to attend Langara in January)

"DECLARATION ON CITIZENSHIP AND ADULT LEARNING"

Elsewhere, in today's edition of the Times, the Canadian Association for Adult Education "Declaration ..." is reproduced for your information. In reading the statement, I couldn't help but feel that KEC has, in a number of instances, been at the forefront with its initiatives in providing opportunities that address a number of problem areas that are identified. For others, there's still much that has to be done.
