BCIO INNOVATION & ENTREPRENEURSHIP COOPERATIVE AWARENESS PROGRAM CHECKLIST

The B.C. Innovation Office (BCIO) was established to assist individuals and companies in the often difficult task of commercializing new products and concepts. This was part of a thrust by Dr. Patrick McGeer, Minister of Universities, Science and Communications, to create knowledge based industries in our province. We are very proud of the fact that as a result of the efforts of this office over sixty new products reached effective commercialization in the past year.

It is also estimated that in the coming year close to ninety-five percent of the new jobs in British Columbia will be generated by small business entrepreneurs. The BCIO offers a wide range of counselling and referral services designed to help these enterprising innovators realize the market potential for unique and workable products and ideas. Our new B.C. Innovation Office booklet "The Business of Innovation" explains in detail each of the basic steps required to ensure that a viable innovation will receive the best possible opportunities for successful commercialization. We would be happy to send copies of this free booklet to you for distribution at your facility. We are also developing an instructional videotape on innovation commercialization which may be of interest to you. If you would like copies of our booklet or if you would like to purchase copies of our videotape, please use the enclosed checklist and the return envelope provided.

The B.C. Innovation Office is committed to assist and encourage entrepreneurial initiative and creativity - to foster in this province a climate in which the entrepreneurial spirit might truly flourish. With your help, we can do it.
